Capt. W. W. Bradshaw is in Eastern Kentucky working in the interest of the Sunday School.

David Baker, of Burkesville, and Miss M. Baker, Danville, were in Columbia last Saturday.

Mrs. Ben Smith and children, of New Albany, Ind., are visiting the family of Mr. S. W. Smith.

Messrs. Rollin Brownling and Herschel Baker, Jr., will attend the commercial convention in Louisville this week.

Eld. W. K. Azbill and wife left for Louisville Monday afternoon. They will attend the State Development convention.

Mrs. M. D. Baker was taken seriously ill last Wednesday, and remained in that condition several hours. At this writing she has almost fully recovered.

Mr. Upton Grider, who has been in the city for six years, returned home last week. He will be with his relatives and friends here until next Spring.

Col. Nat Gaither, of Hopkinsville, who was a citizen of Columbus when the civil war broke out, and who entered the Confederate army, paid his many friends here a visit last Friday, remaining over Sunday. During Col. Gaithers stay in Columbia he was a deputy circuit court clerk under the late Justice Caldwell. His father was Dr. Nick Gaither, a native of this place.

Last Saturday Clark's circus exhibited at Breeding. A large crowd from Cumberland, Metcalfe, and Adair were in attendance. During the day a general fight ensued, brought on it is said by red liquor, in which Will Yarberry, John Garren and Lewis Fridge engaged. All three received knife wounds but neither of the parties was seriously hurt.

The Conference of the United Brethren Church for 1905 will be held in the Presbyterian church, this City. Heretofore the name of this Conference has been known as the Cumberland, but at the Conference, held last week, the name was changed to Columbia Conference. Bishop Carter will return to this place in the month of January at which time he will take steps to put up a church building. The annual Conference will be held in the month of October.

The Kentucky Anti-Saloon League was represented in Columbia last Monday night by Rev. H. E. Cleaton, who addressed a good audience at the church.

This organization is doing a grand work, the object being to put saloon men and boot leggers out of business. Mr. Cleaton is a strong, forcible speaker and has his whole soul in the work. All he said here was endorsed by the many who heard him.

A report is in circulation here that Dode Dowell, of Metcalfe county, cut his wife's throat last Thursday night. We have endeavored to learn the particulars but have failed up to this writing. This much we have heard: Dode went home intoxicated and his wife followed him to his bed, and he cut his wife's throat. Dowell left her home for that of his neighbor. She was overtaken by her husband and slashed across the throat with a knife. It is said that Dowell is in hiding and that officers are on the watch.

Bishop T. C. Carter, of Chillicothe, Tenn., presented an able sermon at the Methodist church last Wednesday night.

Friday night following, an interesting address on Sunday School work was delivered at the same church by Col. Robert Cowden, of Dayton, Ohio. These gentlemen belong to the United Brethren Church and are strong men. It is thought that Columbia will be selected for holding their annual Conference for 1906, as many of our citizens favor it. The Conference for this year was held in the South Western portion of the county, and closed last Sunday. Bishop Carter also wants to establish a Church and erect a building in Columbia.

Rollin Browning and H. T. Baker will appear before the Federal grand jury, Louisville, this week. The Government is working on the suspicious doings of Mike Grant, who carried the mail, some time ago, from this place to Crowsboro. One morning he was given a heavy sack of papers and documents, and he accepted it very reluctantly, saying it was too heavy. A few days thereafter the mail was found scattered on the ground, near Columbia.

Early frost and early winter are predicted on all hands and the thick corn shocks and briars where signs are already being pointed to as favoring a severe cold season. Speculation on the future weather is a prerogative of man that he could ill afford to lose, and has been an interesting topic of conversation since Adam confided to Eve, among the palm and fig trees of Eden, that he thought there would be falling weather soon. And there was. Eve fell and then took a fall out of Adam after which they both had a falling out with the powers that were.

LAKEVIEW, TEXAS

Crops are fine in this part of the Pan Hande.

Land is selling at $8 to $15 per acre—a good investment for farmers.

Cotton will make one-half bale per acre and will bring at the present market price 10½ cents.

Milo Maize and Kafir corn are very fine. Everybody has plenty of feed and are needing help to gather it.

Wages for farm hands are from $25 to $30 per month. Cotton pickers get from 85 cents to $1.00 per hundred for picking.

This is not altogether a farming country, and is very sparsely settled, but since I came here, about a year ago, there has been several new dwellings erected in this immediate neighborhood. Also one new store building and cotton gin in Lakeview. The cattle men are moving farther Westward and the farmers are moving in. The prairie that was once the habitation of the buffalo and Texas cattle will soon be in cultivation.

Dairy Notes.

When possible test the cow's milk before buying her.

Never buy a cow whose milk tests below 3 per cent.

If you wet your hands before milking you flavor the milk.

Rinse all milk vessels with cold water before scalding them.

A good brush is necessary for thorough cleansing of strains.

A fresh cow's milk is not as rich as one long in milk.

A good point in a dairy cow is to have the milking habit well-established.

Good cream with a large per cent. butter fat will keep sweet the longest.

Every unkind treatment of the cow poisons the milk—even talking unkindly to her.

The sooner dairy tools are washed after using, the more easily they will be cleaned.

Milk separates best soon after being drawn from the cow, before it has time to cool.

When butter is worked too dry the grains of salt left in it are not dissolved, but remain in a gritty condition.

The time to skim is when the milk has soured just enough to be a little thick at the bottom of the cream, and to thicken the cream.

A cow is largely influenced by training and habit and any change in custom of feeding or milking will affect the milk flow.

If all the milk has not been washed out of the butter, it is certain that an attempt to work it out will result in breaking the grain of the butter.

The producer of dairy products should aim to please his consumers by giving them pure goods; for the better it is the more will be consumed.

Irritability is a quality that is often produced by improper handling at time of first milking. It is easy to produce a "kicker" by the first milker being a man who can not hold his temper under trying circumstances.

When Ingersoll was Silenced

Shortly after Ingersoll, the noted infidel, was defeated in his race for governorship of Illinois, he was one day broadly proclaiming his infidelity on board a railway train between Chicago and Peoria. After being for some time offensively voluble, he turned to a gentleman near him, and defiantly demanded: "Tell me of one great result that Christianity has ever accomplished." The gentleman not wishing to open argument with the boaster hesitated to answer. The train had stopped and all was silent in the car.

Just then an old lady of eighty years who set just behind the infidel, touched his arm with tremble ling hand, and said, "Sir, I do not who you are, but I think I can tell you of one great and glorious thing which Christianity has done."

"What is it madam?" said Ingersoll.

"It has kept Robt. G. Ingersoll from being Governor of the great State of Illinois." If a stroke of lightning had flashed through the car the effect could not have been more marked.

Ingersoll turned pale with rage and remained silent.—Exchange.

Hog Philosophy.

A symmetrically developed hog is the profitable porker.

A runty pig may be properly fed about one that eats its head off about three or four times a year.

The hog pen is the logical banking institution on the farm, and the farmer can draw on his account any day in the year.

Everlastingly at it is the successful hogman's motto. You can't make the most of the pigs and slight them for one single day.

The State fairs are the best educators we have for the rank and file of hog growers. They set higher ideals for men to work.

The high grade hogs now found on the average farm trace through the best and purest ancestry known to the hog breeding world.

Don't worry about feeding the sow till the litter is a day or two old, at least, and then go slow. Feed something light and cooling.

There is a better margin for profit in a well-fed litter of pigs than may be found in any other like investment of money on the farm.—Ex.

There has been the natural controversy started pending Miss Alice Roosevelt's return to the United States as to whether or not she has done right in accepting many handsome and costly gifts that have been pressed on her by the sovereigns she has visited.

It is said in some quarters that she is bringing back to the United States gifts aggregating to value $100,000. Now it is seldom decent to drag the families of public men, especially the feminine members of the families, into a newspaper discussion. But there has been much controversy on this subject and it seems only fair to point out that Miss Roosevelt would have been put in a very embarrassing position if she had declined the gifts tendered her. Whether the value is $100,000 or 100,000 cents is beside the mark.

She was visiting countries where the bestowal of gifts is a mark of courtesy and good will. If it was pearls in Jolo, jade in China or lacquer work in Japan she would have been considered in those countries very churlish if she declined. She is the only daughter of the White House who has ever had the opportunity to be so honored abroad.

Now we have the traction engines going from field to field threshing thousands of bushels in a very short time.

We now see our country great in arts and in arms. Our golden harvest waving over fields of immeasurable extent. Our commerce penetrating the most distant seas and our railroads carrying our products to all the markets in the world. Sixty years ago we had but one voting place in the County, that was Columbia; we had three days election, the first Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in August. On those days there would be more white men, negro men and boys than I ever saw in Columbia at any other time.

Now a few reminiscences of the eccentric Tom Marshall: Old Bob Breckinridge and Marshall were rivals in law and politics, but Bob quit law and politics and went to preaching hard. So one day Marshall said to Breckinridge: "Bob, it was an unfortunate day for you and I when we tilled against the great Harry of the West, meaning Henry Clay. It drove you to the pulpit and me to the bottle, but I have stuck a heap closer to my text than you have to yours. On another occasion Marshall and a man named Perkins were running for Congress. Perkins loved whiskey too. They

EVENTS OF THE PAST.

EDITORIAL NEWS:

If you will give me space in your paper I will write up some of the improvements that have been made in Adair county in the last fifty years. Like first creation, a new world has been ushered from the dark chaos of heathenism and transformed into a populous city or a fruitful field as but in a short period of a day. Our magic wand of science is upward and onward and ever marching to glory.

In the first place, I will take up the improvements in the postal facilities in Adair county: Fifty years ago there was not a post office between Columbia and Campbellsville until I had the office at Cane Valley established. Now there are five immediately on the pine between the two towns, and if I mistake not there was not more than six or seven in the County. We had to pay five cents in coin to transmit a letter anywhere in the state. Now we have post offices in every neighborhood in the County, and the telephone carrying messages as it were with lightning speed—wonderful improvement.

In the second place, I will tell something about the improvements in the way the farmers had to cut and separate their wheat from the straw and chaff: Sixty years ago they had to cut their wheat with reaps hooks and as many negro men. When the wheat was ripe those negro men would go in the wheat fields with their reaps hooks and gather a handful with one hand and with the other hand, cut the bunch and lay it down and repeat it till they got enough for a bundle. They would cut large fields that way and when it came to separate the grains from the heads they would clean off a level place on the ground and tramp it hard with horses and then lay the wheat in a circle with the butts down; then three or four boys, riding one horse and leading one, and in this way they would tramp out hundreds of bushels, but as time elapsed my father built a large barn with a tight floor and got his wheat out in the barn, but erelong the horse tramping was suppressed by the ground-hog thrasher propelled by horses. In a few years the ground-hog thrasher was left and the separator took its place, still propelled by horse power. Now we have the traction engines going from field to field threshing thousands of bushels in a very short time.

We now see our country great in arts and in arms. Our golden harvest waving over fields of immeasurable extent. Our commerce penetrating the most distant seas and our railroads carrying our products to all the markets in the world. Sixty years ago we had but one voting place in the County, that was Columbia; we had three days election, the first Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in August. On those days there would be more white men, negro men and boys than I ever saw in Columbia at any other time.

Now a few reminiscences of the eccentric Tom Marshall: Old Bob Breckinridge and Marshall were rivals in law and politics, but Bob quit law and politics and went to preaching hard. So one day Marshall said to Breckinridge: "Bob, it was an unfortunate day for you and I when we tilled against the great Harry of the West, meaning Henry Clay. It drove you to the pulpit and me to the bottle, but I have stuck a heap closer to my text than you have to yours. On another occasion met in joint debate, Perkins spoke first. Said he: "Gentlemen, I am a candidate for Congress. I come from a very humble family. My father was a cooper and now his son is running for Congress." Marshall got up and said: "Gentlemen, Mr. Perkins tells you he is a candidate for Congress and that he came from a very low calling. He says that his father was a Cooper; now his son is running for Congress. I new his father well. His father was a Cooper and a very good Cooper, but pointing to Perkins, I tell you gentlemen, he put a mighty bad head in that whisky barrel."

P. H. BRIDGATER.

What Paul Jones Did.

Paul Jones assisted in the organization of the first squadron of the Continental Congress.

He refused a commission as Captain, and first sailed as Lieutenant in that squadron.

He hoisted the first flag of Stars and Stripes over a war vessel of the Continental Congress.

His signal courage and seamanship impelled Washington with his own hands to commission him a Captain on the Providence.

He set before Congress the high standard of naval service which ever since has been a source of pride and honor to our nation.

He captured and destroyed the merchantmen of Great Britain, thus giving their government some lessons in their own style of plunder not devastation.

He created widespread consternation off the coast of England.

He captured the British man-o'-war the Drake.

He secured the first salute to the flag of the United States.

He won the marvelous victory over the Serapis.

He compelled the British Government to exchange prisoners.

He treated his prisoners with courtesy and consideration previously unknown.

He frequently paid his sailors from his own money.

He purchased from his men silver plate they had captured in Scotland from Lord Selkirk and returned to him receiving letters commanding his generous action.

He created a feeling of confidence and hope in the cause of the Americans in Europe when that cause seemed almost hopeless in this country.

He was created a cavalier by France.

He was appointed Admiral by the Empress of Russia.

He was commissioned by Washington and Jefferson to command the United States naval forces in European waters to exterminate the Barbary pirates, but died before this honor reached him.

He was chivalrous as he was brave.

He was the very soul of honor.

He glorified our Nation.

But there is no monument in this country to prove the Nation's gratitude.

The announcement made, in the Louisville Post of October 3rd, that arrangements had been made to have 200 negroes from New Albany register in Louisville by the managers of the Democratic campaign is one of the most absurd charges, in our mind, that could be made. Everybody knows that the negro is not democratic; everybody is familiar with the fact that he is republican and that such a scheme would be foolish as well as dangerous to democratic interests. The Post ought to seek and publish more plausible theories if it hopes to advance its political interests. The Louisville campaign seems to be as dirty as it is desperate and we care but little about it, but the fact that the would-be purifiers are going to the depth of impure methods to overturn and outdo the corruption of their political adversaries does not indicate purity to be the large plum in the pudding. If corrupt methods are overturned by corrupt methods what good may be expected? If the "gang" is to be fought by their equals what change can be made? In the beginning we had confidence in the movement to reform Louisville government, but that movement has lost its weight in surrendering its leadership to men and methods the equal, if not the superior of any gang Louisville ever had. A movement to correct any evil ought not to surrender its identity and purity of purpose by accepting aid and leadership from questionable sources. Like begets like. The only thing, or at least, the greatest point with outside Kentuckians in the Louisville campaign is not who wins or loses, but the wholesale advertising of the bad given to the world against our State. If the Post would devote a part of its time and talents to the bright side, to advertising the good of our state rather than firing the animosities that have devolved our people and retarded our development, better conditions would prevail. But its energies are wasted and its talents misapplied. If the dirty campaign in Louisville would cease and the daily press of that city do its duty to the great resources of the state, a few fleeting years would almost make a new Kentucky. If methods are corrupt in Louisville their overthrow can only be accomplished by a steady, honest fight by those who really and truly desire it and not by putting gang against gang.

Some people seem at a loss to understand why so many farmers want to sell, why so many want to go West and why so many others are willing to part from pleasant surroundings. The shifting of humanity is a question of deep interest to a student of man and his environments, and so far as we have observed this restlessness and desire for a change is almost as broad as our land, as old as the country and as constant as the hours. America was peopled with shifters. The families who were not game enough to cross the seas never helped to people this country. The ones who were too timid to face the dangers of pioneer life never left home and a large percent of their descendants are around the hearthstones of buried centuries. Every part of American life, every avenue of business is on the moving, shifting, going order. A man who owns a farm wants to go to town; the man in town longs for the blessings and comforts that crowd the farmer. The doctor would like to be a lawyer and the lawyer, too, like all others, would like to be a doctor or something beside his own profession. Thus it is with every profession, with every condition, in every American state. Truly our own beloved Kentucky is not an exception. We are movers from the first waters; goers who out go all others in many ways. It is here the boy wants to be a man and the man would like to be a boy. It is here the young lady would like to be a wife and the wife, many, no doubt, would like to be a little girl. The old batch sights for days long past while the old maid, well, she teaches school and looks on the little curly heads with envy. The man who is forced to work wants to be a gentleman of leisure and the man of wealth covets the robust constitution of the laborer. The poor wants the rich man's wealth and the rich want the poor man's health. John would like to have Mr. Green's farm and Jim hungers for John's store. The ones at home want to travel and those forced to travel want the rest at home. Many who read the papers would like to be an editor and many editors would prefer being in Congress or some other health resort. Shiftless, restless humanity, nineteenth disatisfied with their station and environments and the tenth would doubtless be if better supplied with energy. The world wags on and most of us are wagging with it.

The investigations of some of the big Life Insurance Companies reveal the fact that they have extravagantly handled and misappropriated the money that should protect their policy holders, or should enter into a reduction of annual rates paid by the insured. Richard A. McCurdy, of the Mutual Life of New York, only draws $150,000 salary as president of that company and other officials pulling princely salaries, ought to be brought within the limits of reasonable pay and a reduction to policy holders made. Such charges for policies and such exorbitant salaries and commissions paid to officers and agents are not mutual and the States or the General Government should stop such unjust methods.

Being asked about the present prospects of the railway, Mr. Azbill said: "For the past four months there has been no change whatever in the outlook. Then we were told by expert, Mr. Green, that the proposition is believed by him to be a good one, and we were advised to survey and have estimates made. Last Friday we completed the surveys, and now the estimates are being made. So far as we have progressed we have fully met Mr. Green's expectations. What the footings will show when the estimates are completed I do not know. If I were not still hopeful, I would throw up the sponge. One thing depends upon our citizens—we must secure the entire right-of-way. I am now giving my attention to this matter with encouragement so far as I have gone."

The Republican State Central Committee which tried the old contest between the Hunter and Edwards factions, in Pulaski county, decided that proper notice had not been given E. H. Hansford before his removal as Secretary of the County Committee.

A just Verdict was rendered when a jury at Russellville gave W. R. Fletcher the death penalty for assaulting Mary Gladder. The jury was composed of Simpson county men, and upon returning home they were met by ladies who pinned flowers upon their coats.

Jack Bolen, a barber at Mid-dlesboro, was assassinated, and Frank Ball has been indicted for the crime. A few hangings in Eastern Kentucky would have a wholesome effect.

The Democrats of New York have nominated Geo. B. McClellan for Mayor.

The claim of Dr. U. L. Taylor of $250 against the county, for waiting upon small-pox patients and other services, was allowed by the Fiscal court last week. The total amount of claims allowed is less than that of last year. The claim of Dr. Taylor had been in controversy several years.

Ed. F. B. Scrimsher, who held a meeting at Hebron, closed the services last Sunday. Up to last Thursday there were twelve additions by confession. The meeting has not only brought souls into the fold, but the church has been greatly revived. The song service was conducted by Prof. Robt. E. Mulligan.

Quite a sum of money was raised at the Christian church last Sunday night for the benefit of the Children's Home Society, of Louisville. GOOD WORK DONE.
And Our Road Supervisor, Jo N. Conover, Still pushing.

The Settlement made by Mr. Jo N. Conover, Road Supervisor for Adair County with the State court last week, leaves the fact that more work has been done for the roads this year than any year in the history of such work in this county. At the Fiscal term of April, 1905 the court compelled him to take the delinquent tax lists of 1902, 1903 and 1904, as returned by the Sheriff, and collect same and apply to the roads. Mr. Conover has worked diligently at this and in his settlement last week showed up 400 men collected from, paid in work and cash amounting to $860, all of which has been applied to the roads. One hundred and fifty-five dollars of the above amount was paid in cash, which beats all records of such collections in this county. In many of the hills have been largely rebuilt and good grades made in many places—roads that will show up good for a number of years. Mr. Conover has been looking after the ditches on the bad hills, and in this he is correct. It is the bad hills that take so much time from the road hands and it is these places that usually go unfixed because the average set of hands are not prepared to do it in a lasting way.

Mr. Conover will soon start work on the creek hill on the Stanford road, and when do that, will reconstruct the hill just outside the corporate limits on the Greensburg highway. The work is in progress, and it does us good to command it and the man who is at its head.

Death of a Good Citizen.

Last Friday night Mr. J. J. Epperson whose home was near Montpelier, this county, died suddenly, his wife being the only person in the house when the end came.

The deceased was eighty-two years old, and was one of the best citizens in Adair County. He was a man of intelligence and was ever ready to express himself upon public questions, and was a man whose advice was sought by friends and neighbors. He was a kind hearted man and will be greatly missed, especially by the poorer class of people, whom he so often and readily assisted.

Mr. Epperson reared several sons, all of whom are excellent men.

The funeral services were largely attended, every body being in sympathy with the aged companion and surviving children. A good name is a priceless heritage, and this "Uncle" Jeff Epperson left. Peace to his memory.

RAY-KASEY.

Last Wednesday night, at the Christian church, in Burkesville, Ray A. Kasey, who is to be the pastor of the Methodist church, this place, for at least the coming year, and Miss Lavinia Ray were happily married by Rev. S. J. Thomas, of Louisville. The church was handsomely decorated and many friends witnessed the solemn and impressive ceremony. Thursday morning Mr. and Mrs. Kasey left for Louisville and from that point they went to Owensboro, to spend a few days with the groom's mother. Rev. Kasey is said to be a very excellent preacher and it is gratifying to announce that our people will have the pleasure of hearing him during the conference year. The bride is pictured as a handsome and noble Christian woman.

Feeding Cattle in the Fall.

The problem which the cattle feeders have to confront is that of getting in gains. At times the market is bad but we have to work against this by producing cattle at the cheapest cost and this is the main point of our study. The experiment stations have furnished us many tables from which we can learn, and if we are not prepared to feed exactly after the manner of the best in the table, we can at least modify it and feed as near like it as possible. We can figure to use what feed we have on hand, and then we can make a table of own.

Of course, we must study when the market will be best, but the cost of production is more important. I will give the way I like to feed, which I know will also prove the best for many farmers throughout the country, says a writer in Farm and Fireside. I like to begin just as soon as I can get roasting ears, and cut and feed the whole plant, keeping the cattle on good pasture as long as I have it. The experiment stations have also found out that the best gains can be made with cattle while on grass.

I feed this green corn as long as they will readily eat the leaves. You can get the most out of the corn plant by feeding it at this time. Eating this corn in connection with the green stalk and good grass, cattle make good gains at small expense.

I keep them on grass as long as there is grass, and when they do not eat corn blades I pick the ears and continue feeding to the end. When the grass gives out I give clover hay in connection with the corn, and that is about the best the practical farmer can do for the winter. I like to make a short feed and get quick returns for the cattle and the corn crop. In this way you will generally get the best market for the corn crop. Sometimes I do not feed later than Thanksgiving, but at times I feed later when the market suits.

There is another point that must be remembered in feeding cattle, and that is that the stock should have good, pure water. This is often neglected, and the actual result from it is greater than is supposed by many. I know of one load of cattle which was given impure water, and I believe that the owner lost more than enough to pay for a good well. Feeding cattle on grain, and then requiring them to drink muddy water, is wasteful. Feeding cattle should have good water, and plenty of it, and salt should be before them all the time.

Make a Hit.

When Dr. W. B. Caldwell, the sage of Monticello, first prescribed his great remedy for indigestion, constipation and biliousness, now known as Dr. Caldwell's (laxative) Syrup Peppermint, its success was so great that it made an instant hit. Mystery Deepens.

Mystery deepens as to why so many millions persist in suffering from such fearful as dyspepsia, constipation, etc., when they could so easily get rid of every one of their troubles by a few doses of Dr. Caldwell's (laxative) Syrup Peppermint. Love's Sacrifice.

"She was good, she was kind, she was true." So they said of her as she lay calm and smiling in death— with a blood-clot upon her gentle bosom. The hand which never wreaked cruelty upon another had unfalteringly sped the fatal bullet through the heart which cherished only love. It had been a long struggle—half a life time of toil and hope and fear and then despondency and the quick end. So the brief story of untold misery and the long years of heart breaking. But back of that covers a weak and brutal sort—a man who had her heart's treasure more than of Solomon's mines, and yet not man enough to care for the prize. Neglect, abuse, lack of love, shame had slowly done their work. The sweet face could scarce hide its care lines by the brightest smiles; the poor heart could barely stifle the sobs with a cherry good-day. A shot and a pang would end all. Alas, yes! But who fired the shot? Aye truly! who shall answer in that great day for an hundred deaths in one? Let the red demon and its towering victim answer, they two. It shall know another curse heaped upon it as it goes its slimy way and it shall cover until the grave shall give him welcome shelter. The sleep, the yearning at the end and the weary heart at rest; he lives with the tortures of hell about and beyond him, and—but one hope—Harrodsburg Democrat.

POOR WOMAN WINNER

HOLDS LOTTERY TICKET WHICH DRAWS $200,000.

Widow Who Has Worked Hard All Her Life Will Now Assume the Role of Benefactor to Others.

Paris.—The grand lottery got up for the benefit of the Press Association of France has lately been responsible for great excitement throughout France. Prizes amounted to $3,000,000 francs were divided between 50,000 fortunate holders.

The ceremony of deciding the winners took place at the office of the Credit Foncier, the best known financial institution of the country, under the patronage of a number of financial and political personages.

All the numbers were placed in big wheels, turned by children from the founding asylum. Every precaution was taken to insure complete fairness.

After turning the wheels five minutes the children thrust their hands through an aperture and pulled out one number, the first wheel containing the numbers of the tickets, the second wheel the number of the series.

It was announced amid a momentary, awed silence, that No. 2,374, series 7, was the winner of the grand prize, $200,000.

During the afternoon wild reports spread, naming various prominent persons, most of them rich, as the great prize winner. But evening discovered the lucky winner, Miss Hofer, a humble matineer in the dragon regent of Sedan.

When Miss Hofer heard the news offered champagne punch to her entire regiment, but did not seem greatly excited, remarking that she confidently expected to win. A press representative telephoned her, and immediately she replied:

"I am only a widow with no children, but perhaps for that reason know all the better how to appreciate the joy of victory. I am to have... I am disappointed, but this time fortune worked well, for most of the numbers sold in this part of the country included the number 13, and were put up the first time on Friday. At the risk of not getting any at all, I waited till Monday, then I bought three, none containing the fatal number."

"I am only 40 years old, so I expect now to have a good time, after working since I was 12."

"I shall set near Paris and adopt two orphan children I know and give them a good education. My husband has been dead only a year. I never want to marry again, though told I will have many offers now that I am rich."

He displayed not the faintest tremer, and declared he had not experienced the slightest physical discomfort. Following the demonstration he explained that the device would enable 250 criminals to enter and leave the human body without the least damage, provided it was controlled properly.
